Although the food was pretty good.	Sentence fragment/Incomplete sentence	A fragment occurs when a key element (usually a subject or an action verb) is missing. A fragment also occurs when a sentence begins with a subordinating word. (Bullock, Brody, and Weinberg 270).	Ask, "Who's kicking who?" (A complete sentence needs a subject--someone/something who is doing the kicking) Is the verb an action verb? Is the phrase a complete thought?	Start the sentence with the subject (the person/thing taking the action) Make sure the verb is an action verb Check for subordinating words (after, although, because, since, though, unless, when, where, whether, while) and either remove the subordinating word or attach the fragment to another nearby sentence.	Although the food was pretty good, the service at the restaurant was poor.
I also wanted tasting my friend's dish.	Verb form (infinitive)	Various verb tenses are generated with the verb form. An infinitive expresses intention or desire. (Bullock, Brody, and Weinberg 324-326).	What is the function of the verb?	Change the form	I also wanted to taste my friend's dish.
